DRY TO HIGH—A few weeks ago, people were talking disaster, the dry disaster of drought, comparing its prospect in 1967 to the "burnout" of 1925.

Today, you can drive US 77 to Little River Bridge and see banksful, ready-to-overflow water beneath.

And this with only four to eight inches of rain in the area in April. Cameron itself measured about 2.35 inches.

Now people probably will be pondering the eventuality of a washout, comparing the prospect to the flood of 1921 or 1957.

The weather confounds prediction and provides endless conversation.

108-108-108

Everyone, by now, knows Martin.

He's the guy that stays home and undoes things while Leslie, 7, goes to school.

Martin and Les have a puppy. It's "Dusky" and turning lighter by the day and hunting for a new name.

There is also a cat at 706 E. Eighth St. She is "Sno", 14-year-old Persian. Her specialty is being jealous of "Dusky" whose specialty is nipping the heels of Martin whose specialty is jumping (correct that) diving out of windows when the door's locked.

Anyone knowing of Martin's hijinks can imagine the complications of dog and cat and brother and sister.

Interesting thing about these kids and their pets. They don't stay jealous too long. Unlike grown people, they are able to make up their differences even if they go back to a fight in the next breath.

Innocent of that kind of pride, I guess.

BUCKHOLTS MAIFEST — The annual Buckholts Maifest drew a large crowd at Buckholts Gymnasium Saturday to see a queen and king crowned and each Buckholts School class put on a skit in the "Day at the World's Fair." Crowned High School King was Gary Kleypas and Queen Marilyn Marek. Elementary school King was Stacey Sheldon and Queen Pamela Haisler.

City Names Group For Remodeling At New Airpark

FIELD IN USE AS OFFICIALS PLAN OPENING

A committee from the Cameron City Council has been named to direct refurbishment of what will be the reception building and office at Cameron Airpark.

Several light planes have used the new facility, which Mayor Bassel Wilson and other city officials plan to open formally with dedication services by high state officials.

In a short City Council meeting Tuesday, officials planned to interview Wednesday another applicant for one of the jobs in the police department. Applications are being taken for police chief, patrolman and dispatcher.

Modernization of the Airpark reception building would be the last step before the Airpark could be opened.

Street Supt. J. B. Earle reported Tuesday that shoulder work has been completed at Cameron Airpark. The City has received paint for striping and numbering of the runway. He said purchases are being negotiated.

He noted that a city-wide clean-up will continue this week, including spraying of mosquito breeding places.

Weed eradication is underway and will be begun at the Airpark as soon as possible, he reported.

One councilman told The Herald that engineers have about completed work on the planning stage of the paving program proposed by the City for the summer. It would include up to 100 blocks of new paving.

A delegation from East 16th St. asked to be included in the paving program.

City officials are still awaiting authority to start drainage work on the railroad property along the Southern Pacific right-of-way in West Cameron.

A Herald First

4-Color Ad Here

The Cameron Herald is running its first full page, four-color "Hi-Fi" newspaper ad in this edition. The Herald previously had run only two-color ads.

Hercules Inc., of Wilmington, Delaware, makers of Herban, a cotton herbicide, placed the four-color ad.

The concept of "Hi-Fi" preprints, a recent development in newspaper advertising, allows magazine-quality color reproduction in newspapers. The Herald, like most non-metropolitan newspapers, has yet to install full-color facilities.

In South Milam

New Wildcat Drilling

Milam County gained a new wildcat last week, a Navarro test which is permitted to 3,600 feet.

The new wildcat is the Luling Oil & Gas Company No. 1 Joe Martin. Spudded last week, it was reported on Monday to be drilling at 1,926 feet. J. W. Hancock of San Antonio is the drilling contractor.

Location of the Joe Martin is on a 50 acre lease in S. Vincent Survey, six miles south of Milano and not quite a mile from the Lee County line.

The wildcat also is located about a half mile east, northeast of two old wildcats drilled by General Crude Oil Company in 1953. General Crude Oil Company's No. 1 Perry was drilled to 12,670 feet and bottomed in salt; their No. 2 Perry was a 3,621 foot dry hole. The No. 1 Perry later was plugged back to just below 3,400 feet and completed in the Navarro, reportedly producing 21 barrels per day on potential test.

In other oil activity, the H. L. Hunt interests of Dallas have filed more leases for record in the block they are assembling in south Milam.

The Shell Oil Company's No. 2 Adoue Estate wildcat in east Milam apparently has as many lives as the proverbial cat. It was drilled to 14,622 feet in search of the Smackover, but was junked in the lower hole when stuck drill pipe could not be recovered, then plugged back and perforated between 5,737 - 843 feet in an attempt to complete it in the Austin Chalk. Reportedly it produced only about 10 percent oil on test, causing some oil field sources to believe it would be abandoned, but as late as last weekend the Shell wildcat was reported still carried as shut in.

Advance donor lists have been circulated among Buckholts and Cameron businesses for volunteer pledges and posters have been placed in store windows in an effort to insure a good donor turnout.

New Court Ruling

Test 'Habitual Criminal Act'

By Frank M. Luecke

A U. S. Supreme Court decision is the basis for the release of a Milam Countian convicted under the habitual criminal act, one among hundreds of such cases before appeals courts across the nation.

A second such Milam appeal is being certified for review by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

That Court held for release in a March review of an appeal of Wilbur L. Morgan.

The appeal brief said Morgan was not represented by counsel in a 1953 trial that contributed to his conviction in a 1959 case under the habitual criminal act. Such follows three felony convictions in Texas.

Morgan appealed the 1959 conviction, saying it was invalid since he was not represented by counsel in the 1953 trial.

The record shows he had counsel until 17 days prior to trial.

JUDGE'S OPINION

Appeals Court Judge Onion's opinion said in part: "In the light of the particular facts and circumstances surrounding the case at bar, we conclude that the petitioner (Morgan) has sustained his burden of proof and has presented substantial evidence to support his allegations that he was too poor to employ counsel and did not intentionally and knowingly relinquish or abandon his right to counsel."

Another hearing was held April 26 in Milam District Court, stemming from the landmark Gideon vs. Wainwright decision, the Supreme Court ruling which allows review of convictions without defense involved in habitual criminal findings.

A petition for habeas corpus filed by Alfred Punchard of Cameron, seeks retroactive review, in effect, of a conviction of burglary in 1928 without counsel which contributed to his conviction under habitual criminal laws in 1941 in another felony case. He received a life sentence he is now serving.

County Atty. John B. Henderson Jr. said that facts developed at the April 26 hearing showed Punchard was not represented by counsel in the 1928 case and "did not legally waive his rights to be represented by an attorney...."

Findings of the Punchard hearing are being certified for review by Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

NO COUNSEL IN '28

"The law in 1928 did not require that persons charged with crimes be represented by an attorney if they were tried before a jury," Henderson points out.

Henderson says that "numerous prisoners are being released from penitentiaries all over the United States as a result of this decision."

The intent of the Supreme Court decision is not to let all "the felons free", but could it contribute to that effect?

The liberalizing influence of this and numerous U. S. Supreme Court decisions seeks justice for the individual.

The decision does not seek to change the intent of the habitual criminal act which says, in effect, that a man, convicted of several felonies, has proved he cannot function in society and should be removed from active participation for a long period of time.

This dates to Anglo-Saxon and English Common Law. And probably further back than that.

The peg was driven by the U. S. Supreme Court, which says flatly that anyone without counsel one time should go free, though convicted enough times for invoking habitual criminal act.

In the Morgan case, he had served more than 12 years, the maximum punishment for two of the three convictions which brought invocation of the habitual criminal instrumentality.

In the Punchard case, he is serving a sentence begun in 1941. That would be 25 years.

TWO QUESTIONS

The judiciary is being asked the Constitutional question: "Was the petitioner's rights violated when he was not represented by counsel in one of a series of felony convictions which invoked the 'habitual criminal' finding?"

But it is also being asked in the Punchard hearing, for example, if a new interpretation by a higher court can retroactively change the law. Texas law at the time required no defense counsel when there was a jury.

The finding in the Morgan case shows consideration was given his serving more than 12 years for two of the convictions. It was decided that his lack of counsel in the third conviction waived the habitual criminal finding.

Law authorities are, in fact, hard pressed under other U. S. Supreme Court rulings to control a national crime rate that rises in alarming percentages each year.

So the Milam County appeals, among hundreds of others, take on broad future significance.

How far can the individual's rights be guarded, even retroactively 40 years, when exemplary justice in a modern day may add to the chaos of social and criminal unrest?

The sweep of these questions reaches appeals courts in every state in the land.

Auto Wreck Kills Joe Dusek Jr. Week Before Graduation, Wedding

Joe W. Dusek, Jr., 22, was killed in an auto accident in Georgia April 23 just one week before he was to have been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Dusek Sr. of Denver, Colo.

A former University of Colorado student, Dusek had joined the Army June 15, 1966, and entered officer candidate school last Oct. 26. He was to have been commissioned in officer candidate school graduation ceremonies at Ft. Benning, Ga. Friday, April 28. The following week he was to have been married to his high school sweetheart in Denver.

In addition to his parents, Dusek is survived by two brothers, Brett and Craig, both of Denver, and his grandmothers, Mrs. Joe Dusek of Cameron and Mrs. J. W. Mixon of Olustee, Oklahoma.

Funeral services were Wednesday, April 26 at Howard Mortuary in Denver. Burial with military honors was at Highland Memory Gardens.

Capt. Jimmy Anderson of Odessa, Tex., the officer who escorted Dusek's body from Georiga to Denver, presented the son's commission posthumously to his parents, at the request of his commanding officer.

Heritage Trail Includes Milam, City Landmarks

The East Texas Heritage Trail is a 2,000-mile route through 71 counties of East Texas, and Caddo Parish in Louisiana. This is the inaugural year for the tour that includes several hundred scenic, cultural, and historical attractions.

While "heritage trails" are well known elsewhere in the U.S.—one roams New England, and another connects Washington, Philadelphia and Gettysburg—the East Texas venture is the first of its kind for Texas. Its introduction this year is in line with Governor John Connally's statement at last fall's Governor's Tourist Development Conference that "Texans should husband their heritage, and pay it homage."

A comprehensive guide to the Trail is now being distributed free at travel offices state-wide and nationally. It lists among the attractions of Cameron its proximity to the early Texas settlement at Old Nashville, and San Gabriel Mission location. Old homes of unusual construction, many of classic plantation style, and the statue of Ben Milam are also included.

The guidebook, with map, is also available by mail from the East Texas Chamber of Commerce at Longview.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane Harwell of Corpus Christi have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Harwell and other relatives in Cameron.

Cameron Equipment Has Variety Of Tractors, Service, Parts

Cameron Equipment Co., Inc., on SH 36 West, has a variety of farm tools and auxiliary equipment to go with the International Harvester Farmall equipment they sell so much of.

Managed by Tommy Corley, vice-president of the corporation, Cameron Equipment Co. is headed by Cliff Wiese, high school principal eight years here before going to Calvert in 1942. Mrs. Corley is secretary-treasurer of the operation.

But service is what sells Farmall tractors, both in the shop run by foreman Leo Plachy, a senior mechanic with 27 years experience, who is assisted by Ben Ray Jurgens, with 10 years experience.

Pete Miller is veteran parts manager.

Pete Smith, of Rogers, is outside tractor salesman.

Beside the International Harvester tractors and equipment, Cameron Equipment Co. is franchise dealer for other well known farm equipment and parts.

They include I-H mowers, Reliable batteries, S-K tools of all kinds, Couplimatic hydraulic hose service, made to specification from one quarter to one-inch size.

The I-H dealership is "bolts headquarters" for any type of bolt.

Other brand equipment sold includes "Servis" equipment like shredders and blades, and Continental Belt Co.'s posthole diggers, sprayers and spray equipment.

Corley is quick to point out that any repair is possible in the tractor service department, from front to back of the machinery.

The specialty is tractor motor overhauls.

The relatively new dealership opened in the fall of 1965 and already is planning an expansion of its service and parts departments.

Corley hopes to introduce some "self-service" parts displays, a modern development in the farm equipment business.

Incidental item in the numerous farm equipment lines also include all types of drill bits, tap and die sets, all types of hydraulic cylinders and pipe fittings.

It is a complete farm equipment center, working and growing to serve Milam area farm needs better.

Late April Rains . . . .

Surely the drought is ended with the past weekend's rains.

The San Gabriel River, in fact, was flood level with heavy rains in the Georgetown area. The Belton Dam kept things normal above the Little River-San Gabriel confluence.

Rainfall varies widely in the Milam area, but in the past three weeks from 4 to 8 inches have fallen throughout.

Grassland and lawns are growing well as cattle prices are stable and planting of spring grain and cotton is all but completed.

It seems that April and September annually yield the big rainfalls. The Texas drought occurred between fall 1966 and spring 1967 in this pattern.

But late April found the rains it is noted for and brought even enough moisture for the top soil in most places.

Rogers Homecoming . . . .

The community of Rogers held another biennial homecoming last Saturday.

It is a community that continues to survive the considerable changes of agriculture, which for 70 years has been its lifeblood.

Some 2,000 people returned or turned out, more than twice the population, for the Rogers Homecoming. Unless we are mistaken, that is more than two years ago.

The continuity of pride this biennial homecoming provides is vital to a small community of a 1,000 poeple. It could well mean the basis for growth in the modern sense of residential development.

Smaller communities, as things change in the cities, have more attraction in their quiet atmosphere while offering many of the services of the city.

But modern suburbia lacks the kinship which a Rogers Homecoming must generate. And it is an esprit which is vital, present or absent, to any small community in the 1960's.

Cotton Allotment Transfer Vote For Milam County May 15 - 19

Cotton farmers in Milam County will vote the middle of May to decide whether they want to be able to sell or lease their cotton allotments outside the county, Ted Ford, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. The referendum on the question will be conducted May 15 through May 19. Ballots may be returned by mail or delivered by hand to the ASCS county office during that time.

The only question to be decided by the balloting is whether upland cotton allotments may be transferred during the next 2 years to farms which are owned or controlled by someone else and located in other counties. Such transfers may be made by sale or by lease. In no case may transfers be made outside the State. An affirmative vote by at least two-thirds of the county's cotton farmers who vote will permit such transfers during the next two years, 1968 and 1969.

Two similar referendums were conducted in 1965 and 1966 throughout the Cotton Belt, and growers in 412 counties have already approved the allotment transfers. The vote this May will be held only in counties where such transfers have not previously been approved.

The chairman points out that voting by mail is easy and convenient, and the vote therefore should be large and full representative of the wishes of cotton farmers in the county.

Copies of the ballot will be sent to all cotton producers of record in the county, together with information describing the program's purpose and operation. Any cotton producer who has a question about the referendum or about who is eligible to vote is urged to get in touch with the ASCS county office.

Under the Department's Lease Construction Program, the site selected at the corner of Avenue D and Fifth Street will be assigned to the successful bidder, who will purchase the property, construct the building according to Departmental specifications and lease it to the Post Office Department for a basic period of 10 years, with options to renew the lease for an additional 20 years.

Bidding documents will be available on or about May 5, 1967 and may be obtained from Henry E. Lehman, Regional Real Estate Officer, Room 410, Main Post Office Building, 401 Franklin, Houston, Texas 77001. The Real Estate Officer will supply bidding forms, building specifications, lease provisions and other information. Bids must be submitted to the Real Estate Officer by 2 p.m. June 5, 1967.

Legislation For Medicaid Passed

By Vern Sanford
AUSTIN

State participation in the most far-reaching public welfare program since the advent of the social security system has been approved by the Texas Legislature.

Texas House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved enabling legislation which will assure medical care for 350,000 Texans on welfare rolls under the new Title 19 or "Medicaid" benefits.

Proposed appropriations will assure payments totaling nearly $130,000,000 for needy aged, blind, disabled and their families with dependent children.

Where Medicare applies only to the aged, this new program will bring hospital care, doctor's services and a variety of other benefits to welfare enrollees regardless of age.

Legislation is broadly drawn to make another 230,000 "medically needy" Texans eligible when sufficient state funds are appropriated.

Federal government provides approximately four dollars for every dollar put up by the states under Medicaid.

Appropriation bills by the Texas Legislature call for state spending totaling $25,700,000 on the program in 1968. This would attract about $104,000,000 in federal assistance.

Included in the new program are in-patient and out-patient hospital care. This covers diagnosis, nursing home services, laboratory and X-ray charges, physician's services, treatment and prevention.

Funds also are applicable to pay the required "deductibles" of medicare.

Texas Department of Public Welfare will administer the program. First payments under the act will be effective September 1.

BIDGET ADVANCED -- House Appropriations Committee voted out a proposed $449,300,000 general fund budget bill for 1968 in response to the call by Gov. John Connally for single-year financing. Total of all funds is $2,300,000,000.

Bill provides these general revenue allocations as compared with the present spending level:

Judiciary, $7,100,000, now $6-200,000; up $900,000;

—Public Health, Hospitals, Special Schools, Youth Institutions, $198,200,000, now $77,600,000; up $120,600,000;

—Executive and Administrative Departments and Agencies, $78,-500,000, now $53,700,000; up $24,-800,000;

—Education, $250,700,000, now $179,800,000; up $70,900,000;

—Legislature, $4,700,000, now $3,-900,000; up $800,000.

If adopted in its present form, this bill would leave an estimated surplus of $34,800,000 for teacher pay raises and other purposes.

AUTO RATES ALTERED -- A new scale of Texas auto license plate fees is fixed in a bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

While the bill would lower rates for about half of the cars, it would raise them considerably for very small imported vehicles. Tags would cost $12 for all autos under 3,500 pounds, $20 for those 3,500 to 4,500 and $28 from 4,500 to 6,000 pounds.

A minimum fee of $5 would be charged for all motorcycles, boat trailers and other light vehicles.

OPEN MEETINGS -- Bills to require open meetings of governmental agencies received approval of both House and Senate committees and were placed on floor calendars.

House State Affairs Committee approved the measure by Rep. Bill Rapp of Raymondville. Senate Education Committee recommended passage of similar provision by Sen Chet Brooks of Harris County.

LIQUOR BILL MOVES -- House Revenue and Taxation Committee passed the liquor-by-the-drink bill by a close 10-7 margin, with four members absent.

Committee added these major amendments:

—Separate local option elections will be necessary before mixed drinks can be sold anywhere. (Originally, the bill sought to legalize liquor-by-the-drink in presently all wet precincts unless voters specifically rejected the change in referendums.)

--Sellers of alcoholic beverages could be held financially responsible for property damage and injury caused by intoxicated persons who purchased beer or liquor from them. Limits of liability are fixed at $25,000 for damage to property and injury or $50,000 for death or loss of means of support.

—Permit fees would be reduced from $1,000 to $100 for non-profit veterans and fraternal clubs which have performed substantial charitable or benevolent work over a period of five years.

While the first two amendments obviously were intended to attract some wavering supporters from dry areas, they had the effect of also scaring off some original supporters of the bill.

Polls indicate the House vote will be close.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION -- A "compromise" plan for revising the state constitution has received clearance from the House State Affairs Committee.

A concurrent resolution by Reps R. H. Cory of Victoria and Randy Pendleton of Andrews could establish a constitutional revision study commission with a 20-man ciitzens advisory commission.

Governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of House and Supreme Court chief justice would share in appointments of commissions. Study commission's recommendations will be turned to the 1969 Legislature for its approval. Final approval will be up to the voters.

Legislature could revise the work of the commission, add to or reject it.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

It finally happened. I have no notion how it got out here, but a fat copy of the New York Times blew against my front gate some time last night and this morning I found it flat on its face. The paper was just a Thursday issue, and had it been a Sunday one, no telling what would have happened. Splintered the gate, I guess.

I can say this, the publisher of the New York Times may know a lot about the newspaper business but he doesn't know much about gates, or why else would he put so many pages in his paper? You won't catch The Cameron Herald pulling a stunt like that.

However, since it was here and all I had to do was bend over to pick it up, I picked the paper up and sat down on the front porch to read while I got used to the idea of not having to close that gate anymore.

New York, I discovered, like Dallas or Houston or Fort Worth or nearly any other place you can name is having trouble finding enough tax money to operate on, and I was interested in one proposal.

A lot of people, it seems, live outside the city and come in to work, earning their living there and enjoying the cultural advantages, the running water, streets, parks, and whatever police protection they can get, but don't pay any city taxes.

Therefore, the idea was to tax them as they come in, to force them to carry their share of the load.

This suits me all right. Fair is fair. And then I got to thinking. A lot of people live in the city and come out in the country to enjoy the scenery, etc., but do they help pay for my running water and the fresh air and other advantages I produce out here?

Therefore, when a city taxes country people coming in, country people ought to tax city people coming out. They could use the same booth.

This way, both sides would increase its tax revenue. You'd have money coming in all the time, as people came and went.

Of course, this would add an extra burden on a lot of people, but that's all right. Nearly everybody nowadays is used to being taxed coming and going anyway.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Gause, Maysfield Place In CIP

By John E. Snell
Assoc. County Agent

Two Milam County communities completed and submitted records for competition in the Texas Community Improvement program in April. Based on records submitted, the Gause and Maysfield communities were selected as fifth and seventh place winners in Division 2 competition.

Division 2 communities are communities which have entered the program more than three years or previous first place winners in Division 1.

Awards will be presented to the Gause and Maysfield communities, and others that participated in the program, on a future date.

According to the report from the District office, there was a record number of communities in District 8 which submitted records for competition.

The Texas Community Improvement program is sponsored by the electric utility companies operating in Texas, and the Extension Service of Texas A&M University.

Chevrolet's room, ride and price. When Automotive News made its annual roominess study, Chevrolet got the most points. It's roomier inside, they reported, than any other American car. The ride is Full Coil suspension smooth. And Chevrolet hardtops and convertibles are still the lowest priced full-size cars of this kind you can buy. Chevelle's quick size. It's quick to climb, quick to turn. Other mid-size cars might be like Chevelle, true. But they're not as low priced. And they're not made by Chevrolet with Body by Fisher, GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column, inner fenders and Full Coil suspension. Camaro's road-hugging stance. At its price, Camaro is the only sportster to give you wide-stance design. It rides steadier, clings to curves better, hugs the road closer. It's the roomiest car you can buy. Plus, you get a bigger standard engine.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Alone in a Field

A man alone in a field . . . making the field ready for spring planting . . . perhaps is closer to God than he realizes.

The field didn't "just happen." The earth didn't "just happen." Those fruit trees, laden with blossoms, didn't choose to bloom just because they wanted to look pretty.

Stop and think about it. In the natural order of life, little is left to chance. There is a precision about the very rotation of the earth itself. There is a miracle embedded in each blade of grass.

All about us is the unmistakable evidence of Creation, by a Master Hand. The man in the field is, in some ways, closer to this creation than many of us, yet he too may very well be unaware of it. We can all capture or recapture this awareness by going to church regularly.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Danger: The Dotted Line

"I know you can't help me," a woman wrote this column recently, "but since so many are caught this way, I thought it would be a good subject for an article."

Which way was she 'caught'? She had signed an order for a set of books, offered by a door-to-door salesman. Later, when she talked it over with her husband, they decided they could not afford the purchase.

Unhappily, however, she had no grounds for getting out of her contract except that she had changed her mind. And, as she herself realized too late, that was not enough.

A dotted line, like a railroad crossing, is a good place for caution. In the vast majority of cases, at least if you are an adult, the law will hold you to what you sign —no matter what second thoughts you might have afterward.

This sternness is based on practical necessities. Countless business transactions in everyday life are based on the understanding, on both sides of the bargain, that a signature is binding. We would have commercial chaos if agreements, formally entered into, could be cast aside at will.

True, the law may let you out of a signed contract if there are special circumstances that justify relief. Most often, such cases involve some kind of fraud. For fraud "infects" a contract and makes it subject to cancellation.

Here is an example:

A used car dealer held his hand over a vital clause of the purchase agreement while the customer was reading and signing it. When this chicanery was established in court, the judge held the customer not bound by his signature.

You may also be "let off the hook" if you signed under the pressure of undue influence or duress (such as a menacing fist in your face).

But excuses like "I didn't read it before I signed" are usually of little avail in the courtroom.

In one case, a man said he had not read the contract because he did not have his glasses with him. Unimpressed, the court held him just as bound as if he had read every word.

It is a hard way to learn that, as one judge put it:

"Signatures to obligations are not mere ornaments."

Postmaster Urges Closing Of Postal Savings Accounts

United States Postal Savings certificates on deposit at the Cameron Post Office stopped earning interest for local depositors April 27, according to Postmaster Narvie Caperton. He urges all Postal Savings depositors to close out their accounts as soon as possible.

On June 30, all funds remaining on deposit will be turned over to the Treasury Department to be held in trust until liquidated.

Holders of Postal avings ceSrtificates can redeem them by applying at the post office where the certificates were issued in person or by mail. Postmasters will supply necessary forms and assistance.

ZINC DEFICIENCY IN SOIL

A great deal of concern has developed over possible zinc deficiency and the need for its addition to some Texas soils, reports Dr. C. D. Welch, Extension soil chemist at Texas A&M. Local county agents have information on the problem, he says.

Post Office Ups InternationalRate

International airmail and surface postal rates increased on May 1, Postmaster Narvie Caperton announced last week.

The new rates will not apply to mailings for members of the Armed Forces overseas, he said.

The rate increase averages about 13 percent and was first proposed on January 14 and publicly confirmed March 1. The Post Office Department explained the increase was necessary to offset a deficit of about $16 million in international mail operations.

Caperton said that specific information on the new international rates could be obtained from the post office.

BROILER BIG BUSINESS

Broilers in 1966 brought Texas producers $79 million, says the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Last year, 153 million broilers were produced in the state, 8 percent more than in 1965. Texas ranked 7th among the 23 major broiler producing states in both numbers and gross income.

Limits Relaxed On Disability Benefits

Disability benefits under social security are no longer limited to those with a "permanent" disability, Jack Calvert, district manager of the Temple social security office, said today. A worker may now be eligible for benefits if he has a disability which has lasted, or is expected to last, at least 12 months and prevents him from working.

Although the disability provisions of the social security law were changed almost two years ago, Calvert said that his office has seen evidence that some disabled workers have been passing up benefits because they had not heard of these changes. One important change removed the requirement that a disability be "long continued, or permanent, without expectation of recovery." Another eases the work requirements for persons whose disability is blindness.

Except for workers who become blind before age 31, others need to have social security work for at least 5 years out of the 10 years just before becoming disabled. This work does not have to be consecutive or regular to qualify.

Hollas To Receive AEC Fellowship

Charles L. Hollas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Hollas of Cameron, is among some 250 college graduates who have received offers from the U.. Atomic Energy Commision to further their education in nuclear cience and engineering. Mr. Hollas has selected the University of Texas for his fellowship work.

For the 11th consecutive year, the Commission is offering opportunities for advanced study under the AEC Special Fellowship Program in Nuclear Science and Engineering, administered for the Commission by Oak Ridge (Tenn.) Associated Universities.

The fellowship program was started i n 9156 by the Atomic Energy Commission to help meet the growing demand for nuclear scientists and engineers.

HERBAN
SELECTIVE HERBICIDE

+DSMA or MSMA safer to cotton POST-EMERGE

No matter what pre-emerge is used, you may get some broadleaf weeds and grasses that come through. With the combination of Herban and DSMA or MSMA, you can knock these weeds and grasses out fast and safely.

In fact, you can start applying a directed spray of this combination after cotton is only three inches high. This mixture can clean out Cocklebur, Nutgrass, Johnson grass, Morning Glory, Harrah grass and other troublesome weeds and grasses. A second application five to seven days later should be made.

This combination of Herban and DSMA or MSMA gives you a faster kill over a wider range of weeds and grasses than either material used alone. It makes no difference whether your weeds and grasses are drought-stressed or fast growing with plenty of moisture. You get good control in both cool and hot weather. The Herban is moved into the ground by later rains and you'll get continued killing action on emerging weeds and grasses. And you can do it with safety to your cotton.

Anytime your cotton needs it, use Herban from Hercules, the originators of toxaphene.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

—By—

J. D. MOORE

By J. D. Moore

Pecan growers should keep in touch with the local county agent for timing of spray schedule for pecan nut casebearer. Those in the Rockdale-Thorndale area may contact M. S. Pugh at 613 W. Cameron St., in Rockdale.

Five growers banded trees on April 1, in the Cameron-Rockdale area. Robert Orr Jr., 4-H boy at Rockdale, collected pupae on April 16 from trees banded on their place. These pupae started turning into moths April 25. A "favorite" tree for casebearer located 3 miles south of Cameron was banded by the county agent April 1. Fifteen pupae were taken from this tree April 23. Three moths hatched from this collection April 25. Three larvae were noted under the bands at the time the pupae were collected, which points out that more than one spraying will be necessary to control the casebearer this spring.

Spray schedule should start 8 days after 5 percent of the moths emerge, according to entomologists.

According to this recommendation, casebearer moth activity should begin about May 9, in Milam County. The "favorite" tree will be watched by the county agent for early casebearer activity. Plans are to get an early application of spray on demonstration trees during the first week of May.

These insecticides are recommended for casebearer control depending on the location of the trees. For yard trees where safety is regarded, Sevin and Malathion are suggested. For field spraying where residual is an advantage, use Guthion, DDT or Toxaphene.

To prevent dark spots on the leaves and pecans at harvest time, add 2 pounds of zineb to each 100 gallons of spray used. The material is compatible with the above insecticides and may be mixed with the worm spray.

For improved foliage add 1 teaspoon zinc sulphate per gallon of spray used. A guide for this is available from the county agent.

Pecan Nut Casebearers Are Developing Early This Spring

COLLEGE STATION

Populations of the pecan nut casebearer seem to be developing ahead of schedule this spring in Texas. John G. Thomas, Extension entomologist at Texas A&M University, said reports from entomologists and county agents in different areas of the state indicate the most destructive insect pest of pecans appears to be about 10 days ahead of last year's first appearances.

Thomas added reports from Denton, Stephenville, and survey entomologists from Texas A&M all strongly indicate an early emergence of moths this season. He emphasized that pecan growers should check their banded trees very closely for the presence of casebearer pupae. If they are found, they should be removed and placed in the emergence containers or cages, Thomas said.

The entomologist said the bands should be replaced on the trees to catch any late pupating larvae. The determination for the need of a second application of insecticide for casebearer control can be established from these findings.

Thomas explains the early population observations do not in themselves mean that control application schedules will be earlier. However, he adds, it is very likely that moth emergence and egg laying will be 5 to 10 days earlier than normal.

The Extension entomologist reminds that pecan producers should get their spraying equipment in good working condition and arrange for the needed chemicals or make arrangements with a commercial applicator so spraying can be done on schedule.

Since timing of the spray schedule is so important, Thomas urges pecan growers to keep in touch with the local county agent in order to know when to apply the control measures.

Burlington Man Sentenced For Theft, Assault

A Burlington man received a 10-year penitentiary sentence in 54th District Court at Waco last week after pleading guilty to a charge of robbery by assault. On Thursday he pleaded guilty to a second charge of burglary in Milam 20th District Court and received an 8-year penitentiary sentence.

Nolan Harrell Webb, 27, was charged in the Milam case with burglarizing the Roy Lindsey store at Burlington on January 17. In McLennan County he was charged with striking McLennan Co. Deputy Rex Philips over the head several times with a flashlight, grabbing his gun and speeding off in Phillips' car on January 19.

Webb and two companions were arrested a short time later when they wrecked Phillips' car at Moody during a high-speed chase.

The attack had taken place at about 2:50 a.m. when Phillips had stopped to check a car which was in a ditch on the Spring Valley Road.

Milam County Attorney John Henderson said the penitentiary sentences would be served concurrently.

Psychology Of The Times Is Reflected In Color And Design

Color and design reflect the psycology of the times, according to Miss Rheba Boyles, Extension clothing specialist at Texas A&M University.

In times of depression, rich, dark colors are prevalent because they foster security in a time of insecurity. After a period of high emotional stress, such as a war, neutral colors become popular -- reflecting a let-down from the emotions of the war. Pastel colors appear when women's role becomes prominent.

Today's color explosion reflects the uninhibited drive of the young who will not compromise with tradition. Color is here to stay, and it's being used everywhere -- in the home as well as in the wardrobe. Towels are coordinated with sheets and shower curtains, blouses are coordinated with skirts and sweaters, accessories are coordinated with both.

But color coordination, to be interesting, should be a blend of colors, harmonious to the eye, so that a coordinated look is pleasing, not dull. An attempt to match all color components can be difficult due to the variety of textures and materials used. A blend, however, takes advantage of subtle texture differences to make the total unit -- a room or an outfit -- interesting and pleasing.

Affluence has fostered coordination in designs as well as color. Today's consumer, with more money and more sophistication, is demanding coordination in goods. It makes sense, too, says Miss Boyles. There is less chance for expensive mistakes in color and design coordination, and the end result is more satisfying to live with.

When you go fishing you like to brag about the "net results". In other words—the fish you not only "hook" but get into the landing net.

Some bass fishermen disdain nets. Not this angler! Believe you me they are essential. We've lost some mighty fine bass simply because there was no net handy to bring them into the boat. And that's a great disappointment!

There are times, too, when the netter gets careless and the fish gets away. Thus the care and netting of fish becomes a serious matter.

Every fisherman has his own style of landing the fish. It makes a pretty picture when a man leans over the gunwale of the boat and neatly sticks his thumb into the yawning mouth of a big bass, with a lure barely hanging in its lip. Many are brought in like that.

On the other hand, the fisherman with a good aluminum frame net, having a hoop at least 20 inches across and a handle at least two feet long, has the best chance of getting his fighting fish into the meat box.

There are numerous types of nets. Our first one was made by stretching a grain sack between the forks of a stick.

Today, however, all of us have a variety of nets to choose from. And we're lucky!

Another important thing is to have the net handy. Too many times when the net is needed it is tangled with the anchor rope, a loose plug on the floor, or one corner of the mesh is caught under the ice chest.

When an experienced fisherman climbs aboard with all his gear (rods, reels, and tackle box) one of the first things he does is check both the location of his paddle and the whereabouts of his fishing net. If they are handy and he is seated on an approved float-type cushion, or wearing a life vest, he is all set to crank up and get going.

A net with a fairly long handle has its advantages because it provides a better opportunity to corral the fish correctly. Nearly every hooked bass reacts differently, and accordingly each may have to be netted in a different manner.

However, there is a basic principle which should be followed. Never slam the net down on top of the fish. In the first place, the fish can see, and that movement alone may cause it to break again.

One of the best ways is to lower the net into the water and let the angler carefully maneuver the fish head-first into the mouth of the net. Then the netter can scoop it up. Naturally this brings on another complication when fishing with multiple hook lures. Those hooks will become entangled in the mesh. But you do have the fish and that is the thing that counts.

Some fishermen will disengage the hooks while the fish is still head down in the net. Then they slip a strong forefinger into the fish gills and lift it out for the stringer. Or, if it is a black bass they grasp its lower lip. Such a grip tends to paralyze the fish.

If it's a catfish you need to use caution to keep from getting spiked. Catfish can be very dangerous. If you are smart you'll simply snip off its sharply pointed spines. These spines are venomous and can be mighty painful if embedded in a fisherman's hand or body.

Mesh in today's nets usually is made of nylon. Some are of plastic webbing.

A new rubber net now is on the market. When the net is not in use it is shallow and shaped about like a dishpan. However, its soft rubber mesh stretches with the weight of the fish.

Another good feature is that hooks do not get tangled in its mesh. This makes it easier to get the fish on the stringer and the lure back into the water.

We're always happy to see improvements in fishing gear and this use of rubber mesh certainly is another aid for the angler.

Diplomatic Pouch

WASHINGTON D.C. The following letters were recently answered by the Department of State.

Vietnam Elections

I am interested in the elections that were held in Vietnam. I have looked in newspapers for information, but they did not contain enough information that I was looking for. From my point of view, the people who turned out for the elections in Vietnam, despite Communist threats, made the greatest step towards defeating the Communists Vietnam has ever taken. This is all for a report on the Vietnam elections which I have chosen for my World History class at school.

W. B
Springfield, Mass

Dear Mr. B.:

Participation of Vietnamese voters in the elections of September 11, 1966, exceeded expectations. Nearly 4.3 million persons cast ballots, or 80.8 percent of the registered electorate. Compared with the local elections of May 30, 1965, there was an increase of 12 percent in the number of registered voters, and an increase of 21 percent in the number of actual voters.

These statistics become even more impressive when viewed against the massive Viet Cong effort to intimidate voters and disrupt the balloting. Terrorist incidents just prior to and during voting hours were five times the average rate during the preceding month. There were 166 acts of terrorism by the Viet Cong during the election eve and hours of polling. Nevertheless, the mass turnout of voters indicates decisively the resolute interest of the South Vietnamese people in selecting a Constituent Assembly to establish the future political structures of their country.

There were many foreign observers in Vietnam during these elections. In response to the invitation issued by the Government of Vietnam, the usual foreign press corps of about 350 correspondents swelled to over 500 by election day. Diplomats resident at Saigon also received an invitation from the Government of Vietnam to witness the voting. That Government provided transport and other assistance for use by both correspondents and diplomats to facilitate their travel throughout the country. Parliamentary delegations from Japan and Korea also observed the elections.

At Saigon, Italian Ambassador d'Orlandi, dean of the diplomatic corps, pointed out: "Due to the efficient arrangements made by the Government of Vietnam, it was possible for the diplomatic crops in Saigon to see the orderly way in which this nation-wide vote was cast and the fact that the voter was perfectly free and protected from violence." The great majority of comment from other election observers was in a similarly favorable vein.

What About Albania?

I am a sixth grade student. My teacher gave each of us a country in Europe to do as a semester project. Could I please have some information about Albania that contains pictures, a booklet, and maps. Thank you.

D. H.
Bartonville, Ill.

Dear Miss H.:

The United States and Albania do not have diplomatic relations. There is no office in Washington to which you could write for information on Albania and there are no United States Government publications on Albania. Under the circumstances, we suggest that your best source of information on Albania may be a reference work such as the Encyclopedia Britannica. We hope that the enclosed map of Albania will be of use to you.
